Mr. National Bank of Cumberland at 106. Tucker did not challenge Judge Mann, The bonds bear 5 per cent interest, and are redeemable at par each year. While challenges which had been declined, and since Judge Mann had issued a public $45,000 would install the waterworks and statement to the effect that he was opposed to discussions, he did not care to be put in an attitude of pressing him so far against his will and convictions.

But while Mr. Tucker discussed Judge Mann's legislative record very freely, Judge Mann did not make any allusion to Mr. Tucker or even call his name, although he replied indirectly to attacks which have been made upon him. Commonwealth's Attorney Byrd, wh speech, said that it was not the judge's intention to make any mention of Mr. Tucker, or his record, and that should expected by the correspondents that the judge would be brought back and allowed to speak, but Mr. Byrd went away when the judge retired at the conclusion of his own speech and there was no one to carry the news that Mr. Tucker was dis cussing records In fairness to Mr. Tucker, it should be stated that he was not present when Mr.

Byrd's statement was made, and was not informed that the candidates were not expected to discuss records.

Judge Mann discussed public schools, Confed erate pension, good roads, the record of the Democratic party in Virginia, and reiterated his advocacy of local option as town; vice president, M. W. He denounced as absolutely false the statement that he was in any agreement with the Ilquor people of Virginia. He declared that the best evidence that there was no bargain between himself and the liouor interests, was that he thus made public his views which the liquor people ppose so strongly.

Judge Mann said he had only been local ounsel for the Norfolk and Western, and declared with much emphasis that he had never been influenced in casting a vote in the Senate by reason of his railway
